

Asyouare, return to the forgotten land

The spiritual dance-rock soul medicine experience

Tangled up in our robes of limiting beliefs and ancestral trauma, saturated energetically with a collective anxiety and impending gloom, it is a challenge in 2022 to remember who we truly are: boundless beings within whom every conceivable miracle of the universe has the potential to echo.

It is time to return to that forgotten land and singer-songwriter-poet, Jont along with the Heartland Family - a group of close friends who synchronicously fell into creating this high-energy, at times reflective at times cathartic hybrid electronic music show featuring a string quartet and a full choir - are the people who have come to take you there. They present it for the first time at the Bus Stop Theatre on Thursday August 11, 2022.

All risers will be out - the floor will be an open-flow space to encounter the music, cast of characters and for moving and dancing. Outlandish and expressive costumes that invite you to be fully present asyouare are encouraged! A refreshing dry bar will serve warm cacao, sparkling waters and kombucha on tap.

Ticket holders are invited to join the after-party. After the 2-hour show the theatre will remain open and the energy will continue to expand into an aftershow celebration featuring Heartland DJ sets, dancing and other spontaneous delights. You will leave feeling fully alive – plugged back into the magical electrical socket of the Universe - invigorated, and connected to the essence of who you really are and why and how you want to share your unique expression with the world.
